Consulting/Engagement Skills Refresher - Workshop Specification

Consulting/Engagement Skills Refresher is an innovative, experiential and fun way to refresh and remind participants of the Consulting and Engagement Skills Workshops to continue and expand their use of good techniques from their original workshop. It is aimed at participants that have attended Consulting or Engagement Skills Workshops between 6 months and 3 years previously.

It is based on our Makin' Movies Team Dynamics and Team Development Workshop. It is designed for groups of 12 - 40 individuals and contains a strong element of refresher of techniques and frameworks covered on the original workshop, yet with a different application (team dynamics) for some of those frameworks.

The workshop strikes a balance between:

- Refresher of Consulting/Engagement Skills
- Theory of Team Dynamics,
- Addressing serious business productivity issues,
- An experiential event to work through team theories in practice, and,
- Having fun.

The key new learning outcomes for most participants will be embracing diversity, tolerating differences, and self insight:

- Working with those most different to ourselves often has greater benefits than those similar to us. Unfortunately, the natural tendency is for like people to cluster, thereby missing this opportunity.
- If we can tolerate perceived differences (even weaknesses) of others, this can open the opportunity for the team to exploit the strengths of all.
- Self insight, and a clearer perception of how others view me.

In addition, each team will focus on promoting one of the key learnings, frameworks or techniques from their original workshop in the form of a short movie or TV advertisement. The event can be as business focussed or as relaxing as required, and the balance between the theory of teams and the discovery (and fun) of experiential can be varied to suit the participants.
